Comment and Gossip On Sports of the Day

HOROUGHBRED racing is facing a most prosperous year. Every thing points in that direction, from the amateur meetings, which have been so successful, to the general comment of hundreds himself to possible arrest and prosecution. It only remains now for those Five Hundred Balk at Paying trol the destinies of racing to guide it with the same strong rein Fifty Cents to See Meet and as in the past two seasons and to continue building on the foundation

S PEAKING of college baseball, one of the scouts of the Pittsburgh Pirates tells me that Sisler, the Michigan pitcher who held Cornell to one hit last Wednesday, is in a class by himself on college diamonds. There is no question about his remarkable ability, and it will be surprising if some major league team does not gather him in, but it does Name to be a surprising if some major league team does not gather him in, but it does not follow that he is in a class by himself. Steve Regan, of Cornell, beat him in the first clash with Michigan, and there is no doubt that Pie Way. of Yale: Bob Neyland, of West Point, and George Smith, of Columbia, would put him to the text, everything else being equal.

ISCIPLINE must be maintained at any cost, but it seems a pity that Steve Regan's fine record at Cornell should have ended in A uspension by Dr. Sharpe on the eve of the Yale game for breaking training rules. No criticism can be directed against Dr. Sharpe. No doubt he took the only step open, and his action should be approved, for

Some Baseball Battle.

O close is the race in the American League that the loss of a game on Saturday tumbled the Yankees from their proud place at the top into third place. They struck an unexpected snag in St. Louis, but such is baseball. The team has been playing well on this Western trip and will come back home fighting in the van.

HREE postponed games gave the Giants little chance to do much elimbing. In fact they lost two of the three games played last week and are still nestled snugly in last place, but only six games Giants Win in Jersey, climbing. In fact they lost two of the three games played last sehind the Chicago Cubs, who moved to the front on Saturday by winning their third game in a row from the world's champions. Six games do not make a gap impossible to bridge.

Giants Slow on Bases.

| OTHING perhaps is operating so strongly against the Giants as their base running. Two years ago speed on the bases was just about their strongest asset, but now, with only twenty-nine, they are far behind Chicago, with fifty. The absence of Snodgrass and the lameness of Burns account for this in part. Pittsburgh and St. Louis will be at the Polo Grounds this week.

OR the first time this year the Phillies gave up the lead in the National League race on Saturday. They may forge to the front

Four of the seven runs were made in the second inning, and the Yankees were lucky to score. Pipp fanned and Cook walked. Hartzell flied out and then Cook atole. Boone popped the ball just back of first base, and Leary and Pratt dashed after it. The former finally elected to take the drive, but his feet shot up in the air and he came down in the mud, the ball landing several feet away. Cook, in the meand time, scored and Boone hastened to second. Nunamaker drove a line single to right and Boone crossed the plate.
